Additional Resources:

1. Different ways to communicate include: facial expressions, writing, drawing, touching, sign language, speaking, braille, Morse code
2. A short skit with simple lines usually works much better. Ensure every scout gets to be on stage.
3. Presenting to a small, friendly audience is a great way to get more comfortable performing. Consider inviting parents and siblings to arrive 15 minutes before the end of a regular den meeting just for the short program, so an extra meeting is not needed.
4. Communicate with other den leaders to ensure a variety of entertainment since they will all have similar requirements.
